Understanding these distinctions is not merely about geographical separation but also about the fundamental differences in philosophy, culture, and even magical or scientific principles that govern each world. This meeting is rarely accidental; it is typically orchestrated by destiny, a deliberate action, or an unavoidable consequence of a larger cosmic event. Understanding the "why" behind this meeting is as crucial as understanding the "what." Is it a prophesied event, a desperate measure by one world, or a catastrophic occurrence that forces them together? The chapter will often hint at or explicitly state the catalyst for this inter-world interaction, providing the initial impetus for the story's progression.
