Typically, the bar exam is administered over two or three days and covers a broad range of legal subjects.

Components of a Typical Bar Exam

Bar exams usually consist of multiple-choice questions, essay questions, and performance tests. The multi-state bar examination (MBE) is a common component across many jurisdictions, featuring multiple-choice questions on core legal subjects. Essay portions require candidates to write detailed responses to legal problems, demonstrating their analytical and argumentative skills. Performance tests evaluate a candidate's ability to perform tasks that a practicing lawyer would undertake, such as drafting a legal memorandum or analyzing evidence.
