Key Concepts Covered in Chapter 12

Mastering the milady chapter 12 workbook answers requires a solid grasp of several key concepts. These include understanding hair structure and how it interacts with chemicals, recognizing different hair color types and their uses, and applying proper techniques to achieve desired results while minimizing damage.

Hair Structure and Chemistry

Hair consists of the cuticle, cortex, and medulla, each playing a role in how hair reacts to chemical treatments. The cortex contains melanin, the pigment responsible for hair color, which is altered during coloring processes. Knowledge of hair chemistry is critical for safe and effective application.

Types of Hair Color

Chapter 12 distinguishes between temporary, semi-permanent, demi-permanent, and permanent hair colors. Each type varies in longevity, penetration, and chemical composition. Understanding these differences aids in selecting the appropriate product for client needs.

Safety and Precautions

Safety is paramount when handling chemicals. The chapter emphasizes patch tests, proper mixing ratios, protective equipment, and salon sanitation standards to prevent adverse reactions and maintain client health.

3. The basic hair lightening procedure involves applying a lightener to the hair, monitoring the process for desired lift, and rinsing properly to avoid damage.
4. Safety precautions include wearing gloves, performing patch tests, following manufacturer instructions, and maintaining a clean workspace.
5. The cuticle protects the inner layers of the hair; its condition affects how well hair color penetrates and the final result.
